Girl, 14, hit by truck still in critical condition

STAFF REPORT

A 14-year-old girl is still listed in critical condition with life-threatening injuries after being struck by a car Sunday afternoon.

The accident happened around 3 p.m. near the intersection of Forrest Avenue and North Third Street. Witnesses told police the teen ran into North Third Street, which is four lanes at that intersection, apparently trying to chase down a basketball. She safely crossed the southbound lanes of North Third Street near Wendy's, according to Bardstown Police Officer Tom Blair. She continued into the northbound lanes but stopped just in time to avoid being hit by a red Ford Taurus driven by Christy Walter. Once the Taurus stopped, witnesses told police the girl continued into the far northbound lane into the path of Michael D. Fowler, who was driving a 2003 Ford Ranger.

According to a police report, witnesses stated the girl and the driver of the truck tried to stop but the teen appeared to slip on the asphalt and slide under the rear wheels of the truck. She was run over and dragged 10-15 feet by the truck. The impact caused her to strike her head causing massive head trauma. Blair said the teen also appeared to have broken her right leg or ankle in the accident. She was knocked unconscious by the impact.

She was taken by Nelson

County EMS to Flaget Memorial Hospital where a helicopter was waiting to transport her to Kosair Children's Hospital in Louisville.

On Monday afternoon, Blair said he had spoken with the teen's mother and she was listed as critical but stable but to his knowledge she had not yet regained consciousness. The teen, however, had made it safely through surgery to close a laceration on the right side of her head, Blair said. The teen was placed in a medically-induced coma to accelerate her healing and so doctors could monitor swelling of the brain. On Monday night, the teen had surgery again this time to allow doctors to remove a small section of her skull to relieve pressure from her brain due to swelling. Since then the pressure has subsided back to normal levels, according to a press release approved by the teen's mother. The mother said surgeons would replace the section of skull once swelling had subsided.

Police are not releasing the identity of the teen but did say she is a freshman at Nelson County High School. At the time of the incident she was with a group of teens.

No charges are pending against the driver of the truck that struck the teen.

Police are calling it a "sad and tragic accident."

Filing deadline moved for some offices

Judge extends deadline to Feb. 7

So far, three Republicans and one Democrat have filed to represent Nelson and Bullitt counties in the 15th Senate District. Tuesday was supposed to be the deadline to file to run for a seat in state legislature, but the deadline was extended after three Republicans and a Democrat filed lawsuits, claiming redistricting plans that were passed by the General Assembly were unconstitutional. Franklin Circuit Judge Phillip Shepherd decided to extend the deadline to file for state senate and the house to 4:30 p.m. Feb. 7. A hearing will be held Feb. 6 in Shepherd's court to determine the next step in the lawsuit.

NELSON COUNTY DISPATCH CENTER

Cell phone revenues kick in gradually this month

ERIN L. MCCOY
emccoy@kystandard.com

Cell phone revenues for the Nelson County Dispatch Center may start off slower than predicted, dispatch Director Debbie Carter told the E-911 Dispatch Board last week.

The center will start receiving 911 calls directly from local cell phones soon. Up to now, those calls have been sent first to Kentucky State Police's Elizabethtown Post 4, then routed to the local dispatch center. Once the local center begins to receive the calls, it will also receive revenue from cell phone bills that was previously sent to Post 4.

Carter said she sent notification letters to cell phone companies with towers in Nelson County in December, but explained that those eight to 10 companies have a six-month grace period to make the change-over.

As a result, Carter expects the center to receive its first quarterly payment of $20,000 at the beginning of

'Heroes for the American Red Cross' kicks off locally

BRAD BOWMAN
bbowman@cni.com

Do you want to be a hero?

"Heroes for the American Red Cross" is a grassroots campaign where local business people, school groups, church groups, civic clubs, and individuals pledge to raise $1,000 for their local Red Cross chapter. This year, the Nelson County Chapter plans to raise $15,000 during this campaign to support Red Cross services including disaster relief, assistance for fire victims, emergency military communications, first aid and CPR training and disaster preparedness information for the community. All money raised will support neighbors in Marion, Nelson and Washington counties. For more information about the campaign or how you can help contact Susan B. Hardin at 348-1893 or e-mail at redcross@bardstown.com.

The weather has been unpredictable this winter. Seasonal cold temperatures gave rise to house fires caused by electrical heaters while excessive rain causes flooding in surrounding areas. The need for assistance isn't subject to season but local support from organizations such as the American Red Cross Nelson County Chapter.

The local chapter responds to an average of 50 natural disasters each year including ice storms, tornadoes, home fires and floods.

The American Red Cross Nelson County Chapter serves Washington, Marion and Nelson counties. The organization is searching for heroes. Heroes who can help raise money to continue services in the area. Student organizations, employers or co-workers can take up the cause together. Ninety-one cents of every dollar donated goes directly into humanitarian services to help those in need.

Help comes in many forms: shelter, blood drives to blankets. The Red Cross has helped not just individuals but also entire counties. These are some of the stories behind the heroes.

Smoke fills Tower Automotive building

STAFF REPORT

A fire in the filtration system at Tower Automotive early Monday morning led to the evacuation of third-shift employees working there.

The Bardstown Fire Department was alerted around 4:30 a.m. that smoke had filled the building. Sparks from a welding operation had gotten into the filtration system and started a small fire.

Once employees were evacuated, the fire department dismantled the filtration unit and took the filter outside. The fire crews helped to clear smoke from the building.

The fire department was on scene for about 90 minutes. Firefighter, Robbie Blanford, injured his leg on the scene when he fell near the loading dock in the back of the building.

Members of Warriors of the Word (W.O.W.) youth group at St. Joseph Proto-Cathedral use contributions from the Souper Bowl of Caring to help restock the food pantry at St. Vincent DePaul. # “Souper” Bowl kicks off this weekend

jcalvert@kystandard.com

Cooks will face-off at the sixth annual Souper Bowl of Caring Saturday to compete for the 2012 title of soup and chili champion.

Young parishioners organized the Souper Bowl of Caring to help fight hunger in the community by organizing a soup and chili cook-off and silent auction for the Super Bowl weekend. The young parishioners are members of the (W.O.W.) youth group at St. Joseph Proto-Cathedral. Students from Nelson County High School, Bardstown High School, Bethlehem High School, St. Joseph School and home-schooled students are active in W.O.W.

Last year the Souper Bowl of Caring raised $2,200, according to Ellen Sprigg, who helps coordinate the event.

throughout the year,” Sprigg said. “The neat part is our cook-off teams and how they just love doing this.”

Fifteen teams have entered this year’s cook-off with homemade soup and chili and tasters will choose which one they think is best by donating money in a jar in front of their favorite pot of soup. Winners will be selected by counting who receives the most donations. The winners of the best soup and best chili will receive an apron.

In the event’s first year in 2007, $300 was collected and donations have doubled every year since then, Sprigg said.

Students have been meeting on Wednesdays to design flyers and plan the charitable event.

Laura De La Rosa, a senior at Bardstown High School, is giving speeches before Mass Saturday at St. Joseph Proto-Cathedral to get people to come over to eat at the Souper Bowl.

“About four or five students are giving speeches and they are waking up early to get ready and for a teenager that’s pretty hard to do when it’s that early,” De La Rosa said. “It’s a really good experience. This really is to help others.”

Student volunteers chose St. Vincent DePaul in Bardstown to receive contributions collected from this year’s Souper Bowl of Caring. The money will be used to stock the food pantry at the Bardstown mission store.

Volunteers will collect donations in soup pots before and after Mass Saturday at St. Joseph Proto-Cathedral.

The Souper Bowl of Caring is 5-8 p.m. Saturday in the cafeteria at St. Joseph School. Admission is free and donations are accepted.

Cornbread, hotdogs and cookies will be offered as side-items.

For more information, call St. Joseph Parish office at 348-3126.

Building demolition

TOM ISAAC/PLG NEWS

Rame Contracting LLC, Springfield, demolishes the former sewing factory on Allison Avenue, near the city cemetery on Sunday. Bardstown City Council members previously approved the contractor's bid of $67,300 to demolish the building in November. The funds to demolish the building came from reserves in the city's Land and Acquisition and Building Restoration Fund according to City Engineer Larry Hamilton. The building was constructed in 1950 and was used by Bardstown Manufacturing.

Did You Know?

Did you know shopping local makes Bardstown and Nelson County a stronger community?

- Your dollars spent in locally owned business, like Crume Drug Store, have three times the impact on your community as dollars spent at national chains. For every $100 spent, $62 is put back into the local community by locally owned business vs. $42 by national chains and essentially $0 online.
- Locally owned business build strong neighborhoods by sustaining communities linking neighbors, and by contributing more to local causes. Non-profit organizations receive 250% more support from smaller business owners than they do from large businesses. Crume Drug Store has supported numerous local causes such as the New Life Center, the United Way of Nelson County, the Nelson Baptist Association, Community Action, the Nelson County Community Clinic, and Habitat for Humanity.
- Local business are owned or managed by people who live and work in our communities, like Tim and Robbin Sizemore, raising their families and investing in our communities "future". They support our churches, our schools, our organizations, and our quality of life. At Crume Drug Store, we have supported St. Joseph School, Bethlehem High School, Nelson County Schools, American Legion Post 121, and Bardstown Christian Fellowship.

County's decision solves one problem, leaves another

The decision by Nelson Fiscal Court last week to bring the Code Enforcement offices into the Old Courthouse Building should be a step toward making local government more user friendly.

Anyone who has wanted to put an addition onto their home, build a new home or even put up a fence has probably experienced at least some frustration with the number of loops that are required to get all of the paperwork completed. The move will not eliminate every trip back to an office for more detail or take care of health department needs but it will put the Code Enforcement office just steps away from Planning and Zoning. That will certainly eliminate at least a little bit of wasted gasoline. When completed a developer or homeowner will not have to jump back and forth getting information or clarification or this forgotten form or that overlooked permit.

Communications between the departments should also improve by sheer proximity to each other. Planning and Zoning, Code Enforcement and the County Judge-Executive's office will be on the second floor of the Old Courthouse Building and that will make for better interaction between all three units of government.

As for the old house east of the Sutherland Building that housed the Code Enforcement offices, it will be torn down. This is not a historically-significant building so there should be no outcry from the preservationists. It is simply a wood frame home with a brick addition that has outlived its usefulness. The number of parking spaces that will be added to the lot behind the Sutherland Building will be small but every spot counts. Fiscal Court should be commended for finally moving forward with consolidating office locations for the two agencies.

While that move is ironed out, the county is still faced with the problem of using the old library building on the square. Built in 1914 as a federal building and post office, the structure is in great condition and has been used recently as an art gallery by the Fine Arts Bardstown Society. Problem is FABS is a non-profit and does not pay rent. The members of Fiscal Court would like to see it used for something and Judge-Executive Dean Watts shares their concern but is not in a hurry to find a use that might compromise the internal integrity of the structure.

Watts said he thinks the county will find a use for the property and does not really want to try selling it. The county obtained ownership after stepping in after a sale of the property to a private developer fell through.

OUR VIEWS

Pros and cons of a moon base

If he is president, a moon base would be constructed by 2020, Republican presidential candidate Newt Gingrich told an audience while campaigning against Mitt Romney in Florida. No doubt, NASA is excited about the news, which could mean a big boost for the nation's space program.

"By the end of my second term, we will have the first permanent base on the moon, and it will be American," Gingrich said.

George W. Bush made similar promises to return to the moon and eventually send a manned mission to Mars by 2030, but the plans were lost in space by the beginning of his second term.

"We may discover resources on the moon or Mars that will boggle the imagination, that will test our limits to dream," Bush said.

>> jcalvert@kystandard.com

"And the fascination generated by further exploration will inspire our young people to study math and science and engineering and create a new generation of innovators and pioneers."

America's manned space exploration missions undoubtedly provided unique obstacles that required unique solutions to solve and be benefited technologically as a result. America's Gemini and Apollo programs paved the way for satellite television. The use of everyday items such as Velcro was popularized by its application in the space program.

The image of an American astronaut placing an American flag on the barren surface of the moon, with the blue earth looming in the background was a powerful image that inspired young Americans to become scientists and maybe even astronauts.

Statistics released by the America Physical Society reveal an increase in scientists in the early to mid-1960s until the mid-1970s.

"The inspirational value of the space program is probably of far greater importance to education than any input of dollars," author

Arthur C. Clarke once said. "A whole generation is growing up which has been attracted to the hard disciplines of science and engineering by the romance of space."

Gingrich said the moon base could be like a 51st state but he got ahead of himself with something else he said during his rally in Florida.

"By the end of my second term, we will have the first permanent base on the moon and it will be American," Gingrich said. "We will have commercial near-Earth activities that include science, tourism and manufacturing."

A moon base seems much more distant when a candidate who is trailing Republican presidential hopeful Mitt Romney by about 12 points, is already planning his second term.

Let's listen for the truth

It is not just our nation that has selection of leaders in 2012. Our Sisters of Mercy South Central Community (province) has such in June.

(Please note "South Central" covers a lot of territory: 18 U.S. states and Guam in the western Pacific, and the country of Jamaica in the Caribbean!)

We received an article recently in preparation for our leadership selection. Our Sister Martha Milner reminded us of some wisdom from the Sufi tradition: decision-making is best when we show up, pay attention, speak the truth, and be open to the outcome.

Some traits within each as she enumerated them:

- Show up: recognize our own strengths and weaknesses, strive to be non-defensive.
- Pay attention: listen carefully to others, pose questions in a non-threatening manner, support others in their strong feelings/views.
- Speak the truth: share our positions with compassion; reveal our information sources; explore conflicting views, express our views.
- Be open to the outcome: proceed with the group's wisdom to future work.

SR. MARY SCHMUCK RSM

GUEST COLUMNIST
>> schmuckrsm@scnazarethky.org

These wisdom points seem to have value beyond our Mercy community decisions. What difference for the good could they make as we work through to our choices of national leaders this year?

What about really listening to others — taking their valid points, leaving the rest, beginning to ponder how to address those perceived valid points? Always being respectful of them as persons — in addressing them, talking about them.

Is it helpful to pay attention only to who is speaking — agreeing (or disagreeing) with all that person says just on that basis — forget the content of what is said?

In a similar vein, does it help to discount everything else a person or even group says just because I disagree with/don't like one or a few things that person/group is saying?

So help me, I cannot see how Representative Ron Paul's proposal for very minimal government can work, but I greatly respect him for his integrity and consistency and other ideas including the value he places on our U.S. Constitution. So I listen carefully to him.

Two of my favorite policy analysts are Thomas Friedman and David Brooks. Both think deeply and are uncommonly even-handed, giving credit/challenge wherever they see it due, irrespective of party, nationality or whatever. At least as of a few years ago Brooks and I are registered in different political parties.

A reminder? People who disagree with me or with whom I disagree are not therefore evil or stupid. Mitt Romney's recent call to stop labeling and demonizing others is a point well taken.

Are we remembering that it is sinful to hate others, to tell untruths about them, to destroy their good names?

A further nest of questions: Is business the only way to organize society?

Granted a lot of wisdom from business, don't business and government have different — and important — purposes? Business: to make things, provide services, do no/little harm while doing so, generally stay in the black financially. Government: to organize us for good order, help us provide well for the common good. Thus we have laws, courts, law enforcement. We need both, don't we? Any thoughts about the growing influence between two legs of our four-legged society table (the other two being families/individuals, and civic organization)?

Brooks recently noted that history indicates that successful national presidencies have these qualities: persons who are emotionally secure, have superb political judgment, have often experienced crushing personal setbacks, do not feel the office is about them but rather service of the common good, a larger cause. Are business experience or family roles included in these qualities?

May we get better at carefully listening for truth. It would seem to be a terrific help if we cooled the political fireworks.

We live in a wonderful, caring community

To the editor:
On Jan. 23, I — along with my husband — rented six movies from Bardstown Family Video. Later that evening I received a phone call from Louisville that my brother was dying.

Thus, returning the movies we left for Louisville. The next week we returned to Family Video to again rent the same movies. To our surprise we were told there would be “no charge!”

In a few days we received a beautiful sympathy card from the Family Video team offering their sympathy and support. What a wonderful and caring community in which we are blessed to live. And people ask us why we moved to Bardstown!

Protect yourself when shopping online

Recently, a hacker gained access to the names, addresses, email addresses, phone numbers and partial credit card numbers of 24 million Zappos.com customers, who now risk having their identities stolen and personal financial accounts compromised. I am currently working with the attorneys general from nine other states to find out more information about the Zappos.com security breach, adequacy of their security practices and efforts to protect consumers in the wake of the attack.

The average out-of-pocket cost for an individual who is a victim of identity theft is $631, according to Javelin Strategy & Research. Identity theft remains one of the fastest-growing crimes in the U.S. Last year, more than 30 million records containing sensitive personal information were involved in data breaches as a result of hacking, malware, or lost or stolen equipment, according to the national Privacy Rights Clearinghouse. In addition to the cost to consumers, the average cost of a data breach for a business is $7.2 million.

As Attorney General, I

JACK CONWAY
ATTORNEY GENERAL

want to ensure that businesses and consumers are doing all they can to protect personal data on the Internet. The following steps can help ensure that you don't unintentionally compromise your personal information and your safety.

- Don't store credit card information online. What you give up in convenience, you will gain in security.
- Only do business with companies that offer secure payment processing.
- Check your privacy settings on social networking sites, such as Facebook.
- Configure your wireless router to encrypt data.
- Be sure to have a firewall installed and enabled on your computer.

• Don't assume public hot spots are secure.

• Think before you post and never post information about your vacation plans.

Zappos customers affected by the data security breach, should change passwords or login IDs for other accounts, beware of “phishing scams,” which may come in the form of emails that look like they are from Zappos, and monitor financial accounts, billing statements and credit reports for accuracy.

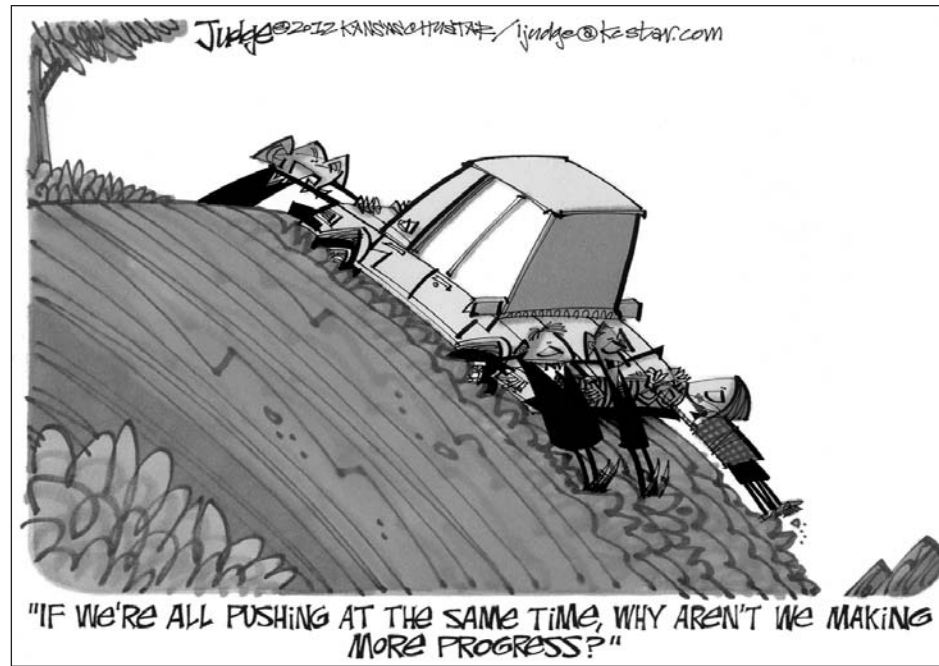

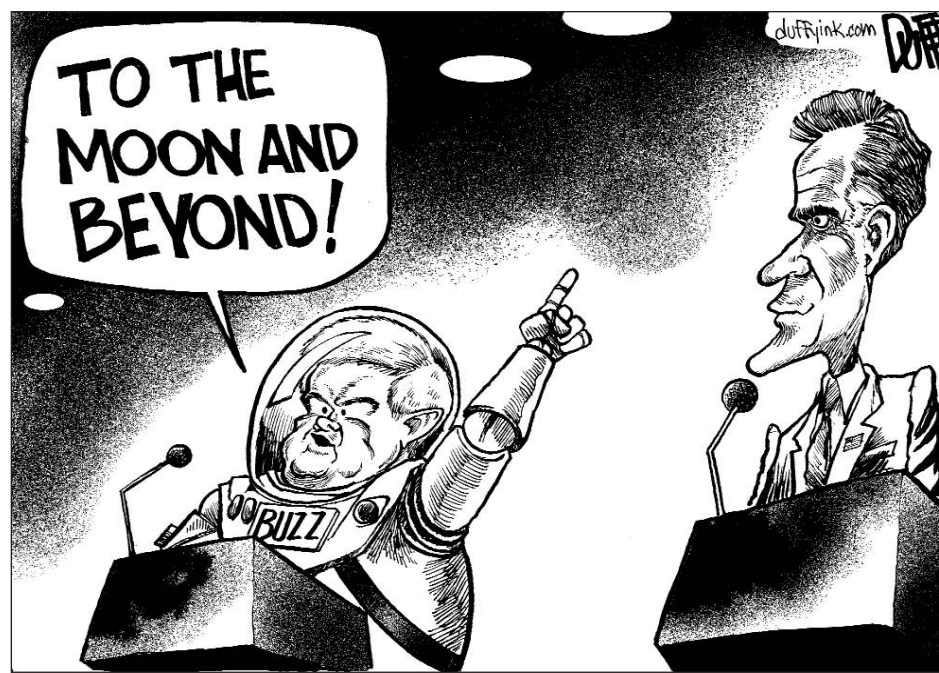

Unfortunately, Kentucky is one of four states without security breach notification laws. I pushed for identity theft protection legislation during my first term and will continue to support efforts to bring Kentucky laws up-to-date with our modern law enforcement challenges.

Prices through the roof! Gold and Silver Recycling opens for business in town this week!

By Laura Roberts
Staff Writer

Gold and Silver have reached Record Prices. If you have some drawers full of old Jewelry or a Jar full of old coins, you might want to cash them in now. Gold has reached world record prices and silver markets have toppled the 30 year charts. The recent record prices have been associated with wealthy investors buying gold and silver commodities trying to avoid the weak US dollar and slow recovering economy. There is no better time than now for you to gather up some of that broken jewelry and other precious metals.

The American Precious Metals Recycling (APMR) is setting up a convenient recycling operation. During their stay, local residents can bring in gold, silver, platinum jewelry and coins and turn them in for cash on the spot. Just about everybody has some amount of gold or silver just lying around. The staff will help sort costume jewelry, broken items and coins. Just bring it all. This week anybody can sell them direct to the Recycling firm. Usually selling direct to a recycling firm is reserved for larger wholesale customers like jewelry stores, pawn shops, antique shops, dentists, commercial users. The Recycling firm has the ability to smelt and refine precious metals cutting out the middle man. APMR wants to do business with everybody. The recyclers visit cities around the country hosting 3 to 5 day events allowing the general public to take advantage of directly recycling precious metals.

Wealthy Coin Collectors want your old coins

Money is close to unlimited for high grade coins.

By Laura Roberts, staff writer.

Got Coin? It might be just the time to cash in. This week starting Tuesday and continuing through Friday. The American Rare Collectibles Association will be purchasing all types of silver and gold coins direct from the public. All types are welcome and the event is free. Collectors will be on hand to identify and sort your coins. Then the quality or grade will be determined. According to collectors, the grade being higher makes the coin worth more money. With the current gold and silver market, high prices are being paid for older coins too. Any dollar, half, quarter and dime coins minted in the US 1964 and before are more desirable. These automatically qualify. The coins worth is determined by the rarity and the grade. Old silver dollars are worth a great premium right now. Even well worn and heavily circulated ones are bringing good premium. Franklin and Kennedy halves, Washington quarters, Mercury and Roosevelt dimes are all worth many times their face value. While older types like bust, seated, liberties and barber coins are worth even more. Gold coins are really worth a lot right now. This country did not start minting coins until 1792. Before that trade was conducted using gold dust and nuggets. The government opened the first mints and began distributing the coins in 1792. By the beginning of the 19th century coins

The response has been tremendous. Many people make two or three visits to get cash for their items. The word of mouth travels fast between relatives, friends, and neighbors. Local residents have been known to bring everything from small coin collections to Silverware sets to large bags of old jewelry and watches that need sorted. Times are such that even the most secure family could use some extra spending cash. As the economy recovers these record prices are expected to go back down making this an important time to act now. The mere fact that large quantities are being brought in adds to the success for every visitor. The APMR has been paying a lot more money than other choices.

The APMR is inviting everyone to bring all types of jewelry. Also other items can be turned in for cash. The types of items they will accept include: all jewelry; all watches; anything gold; platinum; gold coins; gold ounces; dental gold; old coins dated 1964 and before. This includes Dollars before 1935, halves before 1970, quarters and dimes; anything marked sterling, .925 or .999 including flatware sets, tea pots, silver & gold bars, silver ounces, Gold and Silver Coins 1792-2011, any age bullion, and all industrial precious metals. If you are the owner of an antique shop, resale shop, jewelry store, pawn shop, dentist office or a dealer please let the staff know. We want to set up a program for repeat business. Large quantities may help for extra consideration. Long term contracts and direct shipping will help to keep your costs low and guarantee every dollar possible will go to you or your business. Stop by the event or give us a call at 217-371-9580

Items we will accept include:
Scrap Jewelry
Dental Gold
Sterling Silverware

All coins 1970 & earlier

>> MOVIE REVIEW

'Contraband' Smuggling is dangerous, but lucrative

The first thing you have to realize is that everyone in this movie is crooked. Oh, by the way, the hero Chris is a reformed (so they say) smuggler. This makes it very hard to pick a side for which to cheer.

Chris Farraday (Mark Wahlberg) long ago abandoned his life of crime, but after his brother-in-law, Andy (Caleb Landry Jones), botches a drug deal for his ruthless boss, Tim Briggs (Giovanni Ribisi), Chris is forced back into doing what he does best — running contraband — to settle Andy's debt. Chris is a legendary smuggler and quickly assembles a crew with the help of his best friend, Sebastian (Ben Foster), for one final run to Panama and back, hoping to return with millions in counterfeit bills. Things quickly fall apart and with only hours to reach the cash, Chris must use his rusty skills to successfully navigate a treacherous criminal network of brutal drug lords, cops and hit men before his wife, Kate (Kate Beckinsale), and sons become their target. Toward the end, coincidence is the only that makes a plan work.

We may think that sheets of uncut bills are the target, but this film tells us that drugs are an important problem for customs service. And why not throw a Jackson Pollack painting into this convoluted plot? Beware of your friends for you do not know what they're thinking or what agenda they may be following.

Mark Wahlberg is good in his role as hero, but he has had so much practice in earlier action films. He still has difficulty in making his lines meaningful. To quote a critic from time long past, Wahlberg has mastered the art of 'acting from A to B.' But he's a pretty boy who brings the women to the theater.

Beckinsale is the necessary baggage to make the villain that much worse. There has to be someone to threaten, to make all the pieces fall into place. Ribisi, using a mouthful-of-marbles mumble like Brando in "The Godfather" does his best to be evil, but just isn't believable. The excellent actor Ben Foster is wasted with only about two scenes to make his Jekyll/Hyde change work.

"Contraband" is a serviceable January action flick, but it takes forever to set up the characters and get to the core. Not much violence, not many explosions, nor car crashes. So how can we have an action film? In spite of everything, it is entertaining.

Family Rating: R for violence, pervasive language and brief drug use. Also featuring Lukas Haas and J.K. Simmons. Directed by Baltasar Kormakur. Musical score by Clinton Shorter. (1 hr. 50 min.)

hit Nelson County, the water maples snapped like shotgun fire outside Mary Hite's home. From the sound, she knew this wasn't an ordinary storm. After a night without power, the cold didn't leave her.

"When you got up, you couldn't get warm," Hite said. "You just wanted to go back to sleep but you just couldn't get the warmth back."

When she looked outside and saw debris scattered across her neighbors' yards and the road, she knew it would take some time before the power came back on or the mess was cleaned up.

"We knew we wouldn't have heat and my husband was ill," Hite said.

Mary and her husband decided they had to get something to drink to warm them up. They negotiated the clutter on the streets and drove to the only place open — McDonald's. An employee told them about the shelter set up by the Red Cross at the elementary school. At the time, they didn't think they would stay — just warm up.

"We needed assistance just to get in the door of the shelter," Hite said. "The Red Cross people immediately took care of us. They were very welcoming. They sat us down, took our information and made sure no one was left at home."

Many sat around tables talking. Red Cross workers offered snacks, food and water. They constantly checked to make sure everyone was comfortable and didn't need anything. The Hites decided to stay. Cots lined the gymnasium floor. There was another room for the sick. Everyone had access to televisions, computers and books to pass the time. The Red Cross provided meals and checked on everyone during the night. The Hites stayed through Saturday until the power was restored.

It wasn't just a warm place but also the warm people who brought comfort to Hite.

"I met this elderly woman, Ada Hickman, who had so much humor and we chatted a lot. She was very wise for her years and I think of her often," Hite said.

She still keeps in touch with Hickman. They send cards to each other and occasionally they visit on Hickman's porch in the historic district.

She reflects on the storm as time when people came together and the Red Cross made their time together easier.

"I regret not squeezing enough time into the good moments," Hite said. "I will be forever grateful for what the Red Cross and its workers did for us all."

Blood Services

Liz Foster's stomach pains wouldn't stop. A previous surgery removed a growth from her small intestine — or so she thought. She continued vomiting and passing out over several days. Despite several visits to the emergency room at Flaget Memorial Hospital, doctors thought perhaps she had hepatitis, Foster said. She couldn't eat anything, couldn't keep it down and the only thing she could stomach was baby food. Foster, a third-generational blood donor, didn't trust doctors anymore. After another trip to the emergency room, her situation led to Dr. David Faber in Bardstown.

"I was in so much pain and he helped me," Foster said. "He had to do a corrective surgery and resituate my small intestines. They were not laying right from my previous surgery and he took them out and put them back in place."

After the surgery, Foster was monitored in a recovery room. Her medication caused dehydration and dizziness. When she was transferred from the intensive care unit, Foster couldn't be stabilized.

"Dr. Faber made me focus on his voice so I wouldn't fall unconscious. I kept asking for water," Foster said.

Her blood count fell and she needed a transfusion.

"I ended up needing three units of blood. I would have died if I didn't have them," Foster said. "My aunt Betty Ritchie and grandfather Ernest Stuart were always blood donors. I am one, too, and if it wasn't for the Red Cross's blood drives I wouldn't be alive."

Fire

Marsha Lanahan planned to prepare meat for dinner. She put oil in a skillet. Her daughter lived two blocks away and they were going to go for a walk in October 2008. The weather was nice and they wanted to go before the sun went down.

"I walked out of the house and totally forgot about the skillet," Lanahan said. "A neighbor saw the smoke and called the fire department.

Someone got word to my daughter that I needed to go home, my house was on fire."

What wasn't ruined by the fire was ruined by smoke damage, Lanahan said. It all happened too fast. Relatives and neighbors helped move the salvageable property out on to the lawn. She and her husband would have to put their belongings in storage. Before they were done moving things outside Lanahan, still in shock, was greeted by the Red Cross on her front lawn.

"They were so comforting. They offered us a place to stay for two nights, money for food and a care package that included things we needed. The Red Cross help take some of the shock away," Lanahan said.

The Lanahams were back in their house within a few months.

>> File

County and former Bullitt County Magistrate Dennis Mitchell, (R) West Point, Eddie O'Daniel (D), Bloomfield, have filed for the 15th State Senate seat in primary elections May 22, which is followed by the general election Nov. 6.

"I'm running because I think I can do a good job (in Frankfort)," Laswell said. "I can represent Bullitt and Nelson County just as much if not better. My goal is to go (to Frankfort) and get money for road and sewer projects and get the money back to Bullitt and Nelson County."

Floyd filed Jan. 20 to run for State Senator after withdrawing his bid for re-election in the 50th District in the House of Representatives. Laswell and Mitchell filed Jan. 30.

Floyd will continue to represent Nelson County in the House's 50th District, which previously consisted of Nelson County and parts of Spencer and Bullitt counties, until the end of his term on Dec. 31,

"If I'm elected I will be in the senate majority and I will be chairman of the committee on veterans, military affairs, and public protection," Floyd said. "Military affairs are an important issue to the people of Nelson County and we have a lot of veterans here."

The boundaries of State Senate and House districts were redrawn and immediately went into effect when Gov. Steve Beshear signed House Bill No. 1 Jan. 20. The 50th District now consists solely of Nelson County. The lawsuit pending in Judge Shepherd's court may change those lines.

During the redistricting process, State Senator Vernie McGaha, (R), Russell Springs, became Nelson and Bullitt counties' representative in state senate district 15, which previously consisted of Adair, Casey, Pulaski and Russell counties. Before the redistricting bill was signed, Nelson County was in Senate District 14 along with Marion, Mercer, Washington and Taylor counties.

Sen. Jimmy Higdon (R) Lebanon, was elected by Nelson County residents in the previous general election, represented Nelson County before signing of House Bill 1.

Because Higdon lives in Marion County, he can no longer represent Nelson County or file to run in Nelson County again.

Former Bardstown Mayor Dick Heaton (D), Bardstown, and Bardstown-Nelson County Tea Party founder Donna A. Pegago, (R) Cox's Creek, have filed to represent the 50th District. Heaton filed Jan. 24 and Pegago filed Jan 30.

U.S. Congressman Brett Guthrie (R), filed Jan. 19 to represent Nelson County and District 2 in the Congressional election. David Lynn Williams, a democratic candidate from Glasgow, who shares the same name with the Republican gubernatorial candidate, filed Jan. 20.

On Monday, Gov. Steve Beshear signed House Bill 2, which extends the deadline to file to run for U.S. Congress to 4 p.m. Feb. 7.

Plans to redistrict Kentucky's six congressional districts are still being discussed by a joint House and Senate committee but no consensus has been reached.

Wimsett retires from Town & Country

Town & Country Bank and Trust Company recently announced that Raffo Wimsett, Executive Vice President and senior lending officer, retired at the end of 2011 after more than 28 years of service. Wimsett will continue to serve as a director of the Bank and its holding company, First Farmers Bank Holding Company, following his retirement.

"I just want to thank our customers, my co-workers and the Board of Directors for all their confidence and support throughout my career," Wimsett said. "I have thoroughly enjoyed my career at the bank and I'm grateful to have had the opportunity to meet and assist so many wonderful people throughout Nelson County. While I'm retiring from my day-to-day responsibilities at the bank, I look forward to continuing my involvement in the organization as a Director," he added.

"Raffo has played an integral role for our bank and the communities we serve. He has worked tirelessly in assisting our clients in establishing and growing their businesses as well as providing leadership for numerous philanthropic and civic organizations. While I understand his desire to step away from the day-to-day operations, I am pleased that he will continue to play a leadership role in our organization," said Linda Rumpke, President and Chief Executive Officer of the Bank.

Thomas Wimsett, Chairman of the Board, said "The Board of Directors is grateful for Raffo's dedication and service over the past 28 years and we appreciate his continued commitment to serve as a director. We will miss his day-to-day involvement with the bank but we are respectful of his decision to retire."

Wimsett joined Town & Country Bank as a loan officer at the New Haven branch in 1983. He transferred to the main office in 1985 and has held various positions in the organization during his career. In 1998, he was named a Senior Vice President of the bank and in 2003 he was promoted to Executive Vice President/Chief Lending Officer. In 2008, he was named Regional President for Nelson County and in 2009, he was elected to the Board of Directors for both Town & Country Bank and Trust Company and First Farmers Bank Holding Company.

Wimsett serves on the board of Nazareth Village 1 and Bardstown Industrial Development Corporation. He is a former board member of Hospice of Nelson County, Bardstown-Nelson County Chamber of Commerce, American Heart Association, St. Joseph Athletic Board, Big Brothers/Big Sisters and Fundraising Board of Nelson County Industries.

Headquartered in Bardstown, Ky., Town & Country Bank and Trust Company has assets of $397 million and 11 locations in Nelson, Anderson, Woodford, Jessamine and Scott Counties.

February, but a second payment expected in the middle of February may not be nearly as high. It was projected the second payment would be about $20,000. That's because the second payment is allocated based on the number of wireless calls the center has received, and it may not have begun receiving many calls by that time.

"Pretty much everything's done on our end, to be quite honest with you," Carter told the board. "It's a very lengthy process in how they switch the coordinates."

Carter said companies have told her the process doesn't usually take as long as six months.

Once the switch-over is complete, the center may even receive revenue from outside the county, as calls made within the 40051 New Haven zip code, which extends into LaRue County, will be routed to Nelson County Dispatch, Carter said.

Rolling Fork Fire Department covers much of LaRue County territory, said Fred DeWitt, board chair and New Haven fire chief.

"We cover more of LaRue County than any department in LaRue County does," he said.

Carter estimated the board has spent about $170,000 of the $250,000 line of credit extended by Nelson Fiscal Court to help the center become "Phase II compliant" — able to receive local cell phone calls and triangulate a caller's location. Board members have stated they would begin to pay back the loan once the center starts to receive cell phone revenues.

The process has also involved updating maps to include GPS coordinates for about 30,000 address points within Nelson County. Joe Mattingly, a contractor hired to coordinate those efforts, reported to the board that a Yuma GPS unit and three laptops purchased on the line of credit were finally in use.

"We've done the training on the data collection with the Yuma and the laptops. They are all calibrated and handed out," Mattingly said.

Mattingly and dispatch have enlisted the aid of Nelson County EMS workers in collecting address points during the time they are not responding to calls. In about a week and a half since they began to use their equipment, Mattingly reported they had collected more than 811 address points.

Mattingly warned that people who see a white truck labeled "EMA" in their neighborhoods shouldn't be concerned — it's probably him, mapping address point by address point.

MapSync, software purchased as a means to collect and log all this data for the use of dispatchers, has proven useful in other areas as well. Mattingly has mapped out the locations of the three police beats into which the City of Bardstown was divided this year, and Mattingly said he has even printed maps of officers' beats for them to have in their cars.

"We've also had police that are coming in asking him to plot some areas for high crime, high burglaries," Carter added.

Budget

A budget report from the first six months of fiscal year 2011-2012 shows the Nelson County Dispatch Center greatly exceeding budget in some areas but below budget in others.

Overall, the center had used 49.4 percent of its budget by Dec. 31 — right on target with where it should be, at 50 percent. But the largest line item, salaries and wages, was at 60.1 percent.

"We're way over on salaries. Since we're halfway through the year we should be halfway through our salary budget," board member and County Attorney John Kelley noted.

"I see exactly what you're saying — first thing I saw," said District 4 Magistrate Jeff Lear, who sat in on the meeting.

But, Kelley added, part-time wages were below budget at only 26.7 percent while overtime wages were at 46.5 percent.

DeWitt said salaries and wages were higher because Mattingly was paid by the board as a consultant for the first five months of the fiscal year.

"That's going to put us up two high-dollar employees," including Carter's salary, he said.

Mattingly is now paid using Fiscal Court's line of credit.

DeWitt said he would like to have a draft budget for fiscal year 2012-2013 to local governments by March, as it will go through two readings in Fiscal Court and the Bardstown City Council.

In other news:

• The first quarterly random drug test of an individual at the dispatch center has been administered, with the person passing the test, Carter reported. The board voted Wednesday that part-time employees and employees not going for training should be drug tested before they're hired. Full-time employees, once hired, generally receive a drug test during training.

• A three-month trial period to place dispatchers on 12-hour instead of 8-hour shifts began Jan. 8, Carter reported. The schedule was adopted to offer dispatchers more convenient days off.

"So far the 12-hour shifts are going very well," Carter said. "The only complaint I've had is an employee who doesn't care for the hours. The leave time is great." Under the 12-hour schedule dispatchers work 4 a.m.-4 p.m. or 4 p.m.-4 a.m.

• Carter agreed to draft a proposal for the dispatch center to pay her for extra minutes on her personal cell phone instead of paying for a separate work phone. The work phone wasn't working well while the bill for it continued to climb, Carter reported.

• A stove approved by the board has been installed in the dispatch center. Building Inspector Logan Spaulding's office will inspect it, Carter said.

• Dispatcher Milt Spaulding wrote a letter stating he did not get an automatic raise after six months of employment. The board agreed the personnel committee should review what standards are in place for automatic raises before making a decision.

• Dispatch Board meetings have been set for the fourth Wednesday of every month at 3 p.m., with the next meeting scheduled for 3 p.m. Feb. 22.

Buzzer-beater 3 stuns Tigers

PETER W. ZUBATY
pzubaty@kystandard.com

FRANKFORT — When Anthony Myrks broke a 49-49 tie with a driving layup with two seconds left in Sunday's Touchstone Energy All A Classic championship game, it appeared Bardstown might hold on for a win after watching its double-digit second half lead slip away to Covington Holy Cross, and Tiger fans were brimming with celebratory expectation.

Before those two ticks of the clock could expire, however, the Indians had just enough time for a desperation buzzer-beater three-pointer by Jake Burger, turning Tiger fans' anticipation into devastation in a 52-51 defeat at Frankfort's Farnham Dudgeon Civic Center.

"Any time there's time left on the clock, you've got to expect that anything can happen," a disappointed Myrks said.

The signature defense that Bardstown (18-7) rode into Sunday's finals against Holy Cross (22-2) was working hard through the first three quarters, building a 42-30 lead while holding the Indians to 12-for-43 shooting (28 percent) to that point.

But Holy Cross opened the fourth quarter with Antonio

Bardstown coach James "Boo" Brewer and his players react with disappointment Sunday after falling 52-51 to Covington Holy Cross on a last-second three-pointer in the Touchstone Energy All A Classic Championship. ## Bardstown tops Heath in SFs

pzubaty@kystandard.com

FRANKFORT — Bardstown's run of stingy defense at the Touchstone Energy All A Classic continued Saturday as the Tigers held a third straight opponent below 50 points and 40 percent shooting in a 56-44 semifinal win over Heath.

"We were a different team the second half," Bardstown coach James "Boo" Brewer said. "I kind of chewed them out a bit at half-time."

Heath had staked out a 23-20 lead going into the locker room by outrebounding Bardstown (14-11) and shooting 47 percent to the Tigers' 37, as well as peeling off an 11-0 run to start the second quarter.

That all changed in the third quarter, however.

"We turned up the defense in the second half," Brewer said.

Slowly but surely, the Tigers clamped down, scoring seven points off four turnovers in the third quarter and holding the Pirates (15-8) to four field goals while taking a 35-32 lead into the fourth quarter.

That third-quarter momentum grew into a firestorm for Bardstown as Devonte Grundy and Cody Ramos got two layups apiece in the opening 2:30 of the fourth quarter to give the Tigers a 43-34 lead. That lead grew from there as Bardstown hit 9-of-15 from the field in the fourth quarter and never let Heath get closer than six down the stretch.

Defense is the Tigers' key to success, Ramos said. "Just talking, helping each other out and playing defense."

Pirates coach Burliln Brower credited Bardstown for staying patient on offense against Heath's triangle-and-two defense, designed to slow down Grundy and Bardstown point guard Anthony Myrks, and test the Tigers' ability to knock down three-pointers. Bardstown hit just one of 18 attempts from behind the arc.

"They didn't panic," he said. "Other people had to make shots."

One of those was Ramos, who scored 10 points and grabbed all six of his rebounds after halftime. Another was Jordan Brewer, who also scored 10 points after halftime. Brewer and Ramos combined to lead Bardstown in scoring (14) and rebounding (6). Ramos also added five blocked shots.

The Tigers held the Pirates to 16-for-45

OUTDOOR TALES

Cold nights, mild days good for syrup

There still are people who make maple syrup. It's tasty, a sign of spring, and a lot of work.

Maple syrup time is time when the wonderful aroma of cooking syrup can wafts its way down the valleys from sugar camp hills.

Making maple syrup is almost a lost art. Most people who make the sweet, tasty syrup in this part of the country do it for the enjoyment and make enough to earn a few bucks and provide a supply for family and friends.

We are in the southern range of maple syrup country. North-central Indiana and Ohio produces more syrup than this area, and Vermont claims to be the maple syrup capital of the country. Indiana has the Indiana Maple Syrup Association, and has several syrup festivals and producers. The largest Hoosier festival is in Parke County and is scheduled this year Feb. 25-26, and March 3-4.

Maple syrup is a sure sign spring is just around the corner. It takes freezing nighttime temperatures, followed by days consistently above freezing to get the maple sap "running." If the temperature remains below or above freezing, the sap doesn't run. The current 2012 weather has been questionable for syrup production, but there still is time.

The sap must be collected from hard maple trees. It usually is collected in buckets and then transported to a central cooking location.

Some larger commercial operations utilize plastic tubing and let gravity flow the syrup to collection points.

Further north where the temperature differences in late February and early March are more dramatic, it takes less sugar water to make syrup. Either place it is hard work. On average, it takes about 40 gallons of collected water to produce a cooked down gallon of syrup. My friend Doyle Coultas, who used to cook syrup in Perry County in southern Indiana, says it usually takes nearly 50 gallons in this area to produce a gallon of syrup. In some northern climates, 30 gallons of water will do the trick.

After the water is collected, it is cooked in a flat pan over a wood fire. It takes a lot of cooking — hours of cooking, giving syrup makers plenty of time for story swapping. And the warmth

Tigers, Banshees win

STAFF REPORT

Bardstown and Bethlehem each picked up road wins Monday on the hardwood, with the Tigers scoring a 43-19 win at Eminence and the Banshees prevailing 70-58 at East Jessamine.

Bardstown scored as many points in a 19-2 first quarter run as Eminence (6-16) did all game. The Tigers employed a balanced scoring effort as five players scored five or more points, led by Abbie Parrish's 10.

Scoring details from Bethlehem's win over East Jessamine (3-19) and the Banshees' 66-60 win Saturday over Clinton County (6-17) were unavailable as of press time. Bethlehem (4-17) won three in a row going into its Tuesday night visit to LaRue County after press time.

Bardstown improved to 10-13 with the win. The Tigers were in action last week at Presentation in a 76-67 loss. Kasia Stone scored 18 and Parrish added 15.

Next up for the Tigers is a visit to Nelson County (17-5) 6 p.m. Friday for a district seeding game. Nelson County has already clinched the top seed, while Bardstown is locked into the No. 3 seed.

Campbell catching an alley oop pass from Travis Thompson and depositing it for a dunk, igniting the Indian fans and starting a 22-9 run that culminated in Burger's buzzer-beater.

"I feel a lot of pain, not just for me but for my players," Tiger coach James "Boo" Brewer said. "They deserved to win that game."

The Indians hit 9-of-14 shots in the fourth quarter, including a clutch three-pointer by Christian McClendon with 46 seconds left to tie it at 49-49.

After that, Myrks dribbled out most of the clock before driving for the go-ahead layup, setting up a wild final two seconds.

Holy Cross' Kyle Fuller inbounded from the baseline and threw it three-quarters of the court, but a Bardstown player tipped the ball out of bounds. That set up the inbound pass to Burger from the left wing, and Burger turned and heaved with one second left with Justin Hubbard draped over him.

Tiger coach James "Boo" Brewer said watching the final shot fly through the air was tough.

"You're just like, 'hit the front of the rim.'"

But instead of hitting the rim, the shot banked in right as the buzzer sounded.

"I got it, threw it up and luckily made it," Burger told the Herald-Leader.

That left Holy Cross players celebrating and Bardstown players crushed after getting so close, only to have the title snatched away.

"It's real hard," Jordan Brewer said. "You're a senior and you'll never get that chance again, just knowing that's how you'll remember your last Class A state championship game."

"I feel low — as low as you can possibly get right now," Myrks said. "We just have to learn from this loss and just play hard every time out on the court."

It was Bardstown's third loss in the All A Classic championship since winning the title in 2006. The Tigers fell short in 2007 and 2009.

Myrks led Bardstown with 17 points, four assists and four steals, while Jordan Brewer had 13 points and two assists.

Burger, the tournament MVP, led all scorers with 18 points, while Campbell had 12 points and 14 rebounds for Holy Cross.

Bardstown had built a 42-30 lead over the first three quarters on the strength of 16-for-32 shooting from the field, as well as keeping Holy Cross under wraps. But the Tigers hit just two of eight field goal attempts in the fourth quarter and had troubles at times getting the ball up the court. Bardstown committed 20 turnovers in the game, which led to 14 Holy Cross points.

"We had too many turnovers," James Brewer said. "That was the key, just us being lazy with the ball."

Despite the loss, Bardstown played exemplary defense all week, holding opponents to a combined 62-for-208 from the field (29.8 percent) and 12-of-62 (19.4 percent) on three-point tries. The Tigers allowed only one opponent to score more than 50 points, and Holy Cross needed a desperation three to do it.

"We played pretty good defense (this week)," Jordan Brewer said. "We've just got to keep it up and carry it on over to our district and region and hopefully make it to state again."

He said last year's three-point loss to DeSales in the first round of the All A Classic served as a good motivator for the rest of the season, which saw the Tigers win the 5th Region tournament and earn a spot in the Sweet 16.

"When we lost last year in the first game, it hurt, so we always ... tried to remember what it felt like to lose last year and not let that happen again," Brewer said. "This one, I'd have to say, hurts a shooting overall (35 percent) — 7-for-26 in the second half — and 2-of-15 on three-pointers. Bardstown struggled from behind the arc, but was 24-of-36 on everything else. The Tigers hit 53 percent in the second half overall on 16-for-30 shooting.

Heath's Jacob Jett scored 21 points and grabbed 10 rebounds in a losing effort.

Myrks had 11 points and five assists to go with three steals. The Tigers eventually won the rebounding battle, 30-26, and forced 15 Pirate turnovers while coughing it up 13 times.

of the fire and wonderful maple smell of the bubbling water is a delight, especially on a cold, late-winter day.

The origin of maple syrup making goes back to the Native Americans before the white man came here from Europe. According to one legend, it was started by accident by the wife of an Iroquois chief named Woksis.

The chief came in from a hard day hunting in the woods during early March and stuck his tomahawk in a maple tree. The next day, when he went out hunting again, he pulled the tomahawk from the tree, leaving a gash.

Late in the day, his wife needed water to cook the chief's dinner. When she went out to get a pot for water, she noticed that it was sitting by accident under the gash Woksis left in the tree and had nearly filled with maple water. Rather than making a trip to the creek, she just used the water in the pot.

When Woksis returned home he could smell the pleasant aroma from the water that by that time had cooked down into tasty syrup. He liked what his wife had cooked, and maple syrup became a treat. Well, so goes the tale.

If you haven't visited a maple camp, it is worth a trip. Some sell their syrup and they might even offer a cup of sassafras tea. You can check with your local county agent or visitor bureau to see if there is one in the area that welcomes visitors.

Skunk season is now upon us

I suppose every day is potentially skunk season but right about now things start to heat up. Mating season is upon us so skunks are on the move a bit more than usual. I have been reminded as such by a faint funk in the garage every morning this past week. I learned a serious lesson several years back when the dog got a direct shot to the face and we had a lingering stench that was otherworldly. Skunks are mostly nocturnal, nomadic and solitary ... except during their mating season. We don't see them too often and when we do it is usually road kill this time of the year.

When it comes to the striped skunks in our area their general behavior consists of sleeping in some sort of den during the day. We have had skunks at the farm take up residence in old fox dens, groundhog holes and in the barn. Skunks are typically active from dusk to dawn, which is a little odd because they have poor eyesight. They have a good sense of smell,

JENEEN WICHE

» IN THE GARDEN
Syndicated Columnist

however, and rummage around at night for a meal of small rodents, grubs and other meaty insects. A rotten stump with a host of living creatures working to expedite the process of decay is a treat for a skunk.

Several years ago (probably the same year Buck got skunked in the face) we had a skunk that would cruise around the house every evening; we would go from window to window trying to catch a glimpse of the resident skunk rummaging in the mulch and when we finally caught a glimpse we were struck by the fact that "our" skunk was nearly all white. So, it is not that they have white stripes but rather two black bands on their sides that are more or less there.

This white skunk was probably a female because she was a regular; the males are the ones really on the move and get hit by cars more frequently. Females usually stay within one-half mile of their den and males push on nightly in search of love.

Males are polygamous so the females end up being the sole caregivers of their litters that average one to eight babies. Baby skunks — kittens — are born in April and May with a gestation period that lasts about 63 days, so if you do the math most skunks are pretty busy right now.

Here are some things of which to be aware if you know you have skunks in your area.

Skunks have abnormally large musk glands on both sides of their rear end. The musk has an oily component so it sticks. Skunks have amazing accuracy when it comes to fending off anything that threaten them. They can hit their mark perfectly at 6 feet, and have generally good aim up to 20 feet. If you come across a skunk and it starts stamping its front feet, run. Just before they release their musk they give a warning stomp, rise up on their front legs, lift up their rear and bull's eye, you've been skunked.

If you receive a direct hit, it is not comparable to the general skunk smell. Rather, the stench is a combination of burning rubber, sharp, fresh garlic and a little sulfur. The animal lives up to its Latin name, Mephitis mephitis, which translates as "bad odor, bad odor." If you do get a hit, the best a mixture for a wash is a quarter cup of baking soda, 2 tablespoons of Dawn dishwashing detergent and a pint of peroxide. It works better than most other concoctions we have tried.

Living laboratory at NCHS bulks up on vegetables

Learning the "seed to plate aspect of growing vegetables" is not just a catch phrase for Mike Glass and his Greenhouse students at Nelson County High School.

This month the school cafeteria added fresh vegetables from the greenhouse to the lunch fare it serves and is looking to add to that early success.

"It's a win situation for both," said Nelson County Schools Food Services Director Charlotte Lewis. "You're using the freshest vegetables and it puts money into the Agriculture Department."

The cafeteria is paying the going rate based on weight for the vegetables and is anticipating adding more as the new system is refined and streamlined.

"The produce is coming on and it's looking good," Lewis said.

The class regularly delivers baskets of tomatoes to the cafeteria, and has brought green beans, banana peppers, and dwarf cabbages to round out the deliveries.

And for spring, "we have cherry tomatoes galore on the horizon," Glass said.

This is the second year Glass has taught the greenhouse class. Last year, the class had a couple of "salad days" to dispose of the produce it produced, "so they could see what their hard work yielded them," Glass said.

This year, Glass built on that success. The class added hydroponic units and expanded the growing area to increase the bulk — especially with tomatoes, he said.

"This is one of my favorite classes — more hands-on. More direct learning," Glass said. "It's a living laboratory. A living, breathing apparatus."

"We're still learning. It's a learning process for faculty as well," Glass said, as he tinkered with the pump for a 400-gallon water tank containing about 90 tilapia, a fish species popular for aquaculture.

This spring Glass hopes to harvest the fish for dissecting in a new aquaculture class that will study species, trends and anatomy.

"We'll dissect some and we'll clean some of 'em out and cook them," Glass said.

Two students hold tomatoes grown in the Nelson County High School greenhouse. The school cafeteria has begun purchasing produce from the greenhouse for use on the lunch line.

Next year Glass also hopes to add an automatic watering system for the greenhouse and expand production of squash, cucumbers, radishes and green beans.

"We did excellent with green beans. I don't know if we can produce enough for the cafeteria though," Glass said, explaining that the goal is for the greenhouse to grow into a year-round operation.

The spring class will add bedding plants and flowers to the operation. "We almost need another greenhouse," Glass said.

For its part, the cafeteria is proud to offer more locally grown produce, Lewis said. "We're Kentucky Proud certified, GAP (Good Agriculture Practices) certified, and it does not get much more local than our own greenhouse."

Top 3 School of Massage graduates from Bardstown

On Dec. 17 as the graduates of the December 2011 class from the Louisville School of Massage received their academic certifications, three students from Bardstown led the way.

Graduating with the highest GPA after two years of part-time study, Rebecca Rumbley received a certification with honors and gave the valedictory address. Rumbley, back in Bardstown since 1997 after living abroad for 10 years, is an artist and the owner of Downward Dog Art Gallery. She was also valedictorian of Bardstown High School in 1977. She holds a Bachelor of Arts in Art History from Vanderbilt University, a Bachelor of Fine Arts in Drawing from the University of Louisville and a Master's of Business Administration from INSEAD in Fontainebleau, France.

Named class salutatorian with the next highest GPA, Jacque Saltsman completed her degree in 12 months and also spoke to the class on graduation day. Saltsman resides in Bardstown but grew up in Bardstown and graduated from Bethlehem High School in 1994. She then attended Clemson University, graduating cum laude with a degree in Health Science and became a certified technical trainer with Cigna HealthCare in Chicago for four years. Saltsman then moved to Austin, Texas, and worked as an event manager for four years before returning to Kentucky. Also, a registered yoga teacher, Saltsman plans to open her own massage therapy practice in Louisville.

Michael Montgomery finished with the third highest GPA also completing his degree in 12 months. Montgomery, a resident of Bardstown, is originally from Louisville and has been a Nationally Certified Athletic Trainer since 1978. Montgomery graduated from Xavier University in Cincinnati in 1982 and went on to work and train with athletes throughout the country. In 1996, he was chosen to serve as an official Olympic athletic trainer for the Olympics in Atlanta. When moving back to the Kentuckiana area in 2000, he obtained Athletic Trainer Certificates from Kentucky and Indiana. In 2011, he decided to complement his current practice with massage therapy. In the Bardstown area he volunteers at the National Guard Armory working with active duty and veterans. Montgomery will soon open a private practice in Bardstown — Olympic Sports Therapy — offering athletic training and massage therapy with a focus on sports, industry and military.

40 Winks 'til Christmas

BCA students packing up to go to the mountains

Bluegrass Christian Academy students collected books to go to the Mountain Missions as one of their service projects for the Christmas Season. After discovering exactly where and how their books were going to actually assist those in Appalachia, they began at once bringing in stacks upon stacks of books. At last count, the students had brought in more than 400 books. The purpose of Mountain Missions, a project of the Kentucky Annual Conference of the United Methodist Church, is to make available to the people of Eastern Kentucky usable clothing, books, and household items, moderately priced, which the residents of the area can affordably obtain. In turn, the donations provide a source of employment for the people of the area. The Mission currently supports and provides such employment to more than 70 families, as well as the financial support of two local UM churches, and the operation of the Bread of Life Christian Book Store in Jackson.

Tract II: Being Tract 3B-7 of the Division of Land of C.R. Royalty and David Thompson, as shown on plat recorded in Plat Cabinet 4, Slot 88, in the Clerk's Office of the Nelson County Court.

There is also conveyed herein an undivided 1/3 interest in a tract of land designated as Private Road "B" as shown on plat recorded in Plat Cabinet 4, Slot 88, in the Clerk's Office of the Nelson County Court.

The successful bidder may pay the purchase price on the day of sale in cash, or in the alternative, upon a credit of thirty (30) days, with twenty percent (20%) being paid in cash on the day of sale, and a bond for the balance of the purchase price with interest at twelve percent (12%) per annum from the date of sale, which shall be executed by the purchaser with approved surety, made payable to the Master Commissioner, having the full force and effect of a judgment, and a lien shall be retained by the Commissioner securing the payment of the purchase price. The buyer will be responsible for taxes from the year the Judgment was entered to the present date. The Master Commissioner will make a good faith effort to obtain and pay all taxes or assessments upon the property for prior years if there are sufficient funds from the sale to do so, after expenses, however this cannot be guaranteed. The property shall be sold free and clear of all non-tax lien parties named in the above-styled action, but subject to any recorded easements and rights of way, any facts which an inspection or accurate survey might reveal, and zoning regulations of Nelson County, Kentucky.

The Master Commissioner does not obtain title inspections or investigate for liens on the property. The purchaser is responsible for title inspection and/or any additional liens not named in the Judgment and Order of Sale.

The purchaser may take possession of the property pursuant to the terms of the judgment. If the judgment does not make provision for possession the buyer may seek possession of the property through the court system after payment of the full purchase price. You can contact my office for additional information.

The real estate is to be sold as a whole, subject to those items set out above. Neither the Plaintiff, Nelson Circuit Court nor the Master Commissioner's office warrants title to any purchaser. Said property is sold subject to the Judgment and Order of Sale in this case which should be reviewed carefully prior to purchase.

An acceptable surety must be present at the sale to sign a bond and the surety may not be the spouse of the purchaser(s). A surety shall not be necessary if the full purchase price is immediately paid at the time of sale. Any payments must be acceptable to the Master Commissioner in his sole discretion.

Bidders will be prepared to promptly comply with the above terms.

This 23rd day of January, 2012.

Woman in love with fiance's twin is in double trouble

DEAR ABBY: I am 26 and have been dating "Mike" for four years. We met in our senior year of college and recently became engaged. I'm looking forward to being married and starting a family, but there's one "small" problem. I'm in love with Mike's identical twin brother, "Matt."

JEANNE PHILLIPS

>> DEAR ABBY
Syndicated Columnist

what to do. The wedding date has been set. Help!

IN LOVE WITH THE DOUBLE

DEAR IN LOVE: You should have put the brakes on the relationship with Mike the minute you realized you were attracted to Matt. The engagement should be ended immediately. That you would not only continue to date Mike but also accept his proposal of marriage knowing you were more attracted to his twin was cruel.

If Matt starts seeing you after the breakup, it will probably cause a permanent rift between them. It will be interesting to see what happens when you become available because with some people the "apple" that's just out of reach is the one that's most enticing — and you may wind up married to neither brother.

DEAR ABBY: My 4-year-old son made a snowman in our front yard and then went inside to take a nap. Our neighbor came over with his son — age 16 — to talk with my husband.

When I brought my 3-year-old daughter outside to see the snowman her brother made, I was horrified to see it was now "anatomically correct"! I asked my husband who did it, and he said it was the neighbor's son. My husband thought it was funny and that I was overreacting.

I think the behavior was inappropriate, and the fact that my daughter saw it and wondered what was "hanging on the snowman" was no laughing matter. If the neighbor wanted to make an X-rated snowman, he should have made it in his own front yard. Do you think I'm being too sensitive?

FAILS TO SEE THE HUMOR

DEAR FAILS TO SEE THE HUMOR: Yes, I do. While I agree the neighbor boy's "artistic endeavor" was in poor taste, it provided an opportunity to answer your daughter's question in a matter-of-fact way and explain there are anatomical differences between boys and girls. You could also have explained that private parts are not supposed to be displayed in public, and asked your husband to remove them as you took your little girl back into the house. Seeing the snowman would not traumatize your daughter as much as seeing you shocked and upset.

>>HOROSCOPES

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★★★ Listen to the feedback you get; you might not have seen what others see. Accept different opinions graciously, even if they are not given graciously. The unexpected occurs out of the blue. Tonight: Where the action is.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★★★ Stay on top of a situation and be clear about what is going on. You might want to have a discussion involving finances, with an eye to change. Remember, you need someone's agreement to make this happen, so cut any sharp comments. Tonight: Out.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★★★ Your smile might not work magic in the morning, but by the evening it will. You might not want to repeat the same conversation verbatim — a little change could spark another person's interest. Examine the possibilities with an open mind. Tonight: Whatever makes you smile.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★★★ Know that sometimes it is better to back up rather than get in the middle of a major conflict. Your interests will be better served. Someone you look up to becomes difficult and unstable. Accept the situation, as you might not be able to change it. Tonight: Order in.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★★★ Look toward making a difference where it counts. Your happy and caring side emerges when dealing with others, especially in a group. You note a conviviality that you rarely see. Let go and enjoy the moment. Tonight: Only where the fun is.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★★★ Realize what you are expecting from someone you look up to. Perhaps you don't see this person realistically. Could that be possible? Rather than scrap about a situation, take responsibility for your side of the issue. Tonight:

Others notice you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★★★ You'll get results by pulling back and dealing with a problematic situation through detachment. Plunge right in. You could have a problem. You could discover that a partner or loved one acts in a most unexpected manner. Tonight: Try something unusual or different.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★★ You might be surprised by what is happening with a close partner or loved one. You work very hard to clear out an issue. Accept the unexpected at work. Work with new technology. Your efficiency and flex count. Tonight: Curb sarcasm.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★★★ Others have a way of challenging you. Be aware of what is going on with a child or loved one. There might be a side of you that wants no problems. You cannot avoid the inevitable. Confusion surrounds a personal decision. Tonight: Let another person make the final choice.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★★★ You have been working way too hard for your taste. Be aware of another's effort; don't listen to hearsay about this person. Avoid those who are sarcastic and demanding, if possible. You could have quite a shake-up or realization. Tonight: Choose a stress-buster.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★★★ You simply cannot help yourself — you feel good and are light and lively. Use care with your finances, as you might not be seeing the situation clearly, could miscount your change or might actually be deceived. Understand your limitations, and remain upbeat. Tonight: Let the fun begin.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★★ You might not be as present as you might like to be when dealing with another person. Laughter in your mind surrounds a decision that could make you feel a little silly, mainly because you have worried about it for quite a while. Tonight: Order in.
